In his opening speech, Executive Director of the German Trade Office, Axel Limberg, stated: "The Aerotropolis Project and the terminal extension of Taoyuan Airport for Terminal 3 will be a new milestone in the cooperation between German and Taiwanese companies in particular in the field of aviation and airport solutions. German companies and their technology can contribute to a great extent to the further development of the whole project and lay the foundation of prosperous future cooperation with Taiwanese businesses."

Aerotropolis Project / Terminal 3 Extension Project Taoyuan Airport

Taoyuan Airport is one of the most important airports in the world, ranking 35th in terms of passenger transportation and 11th in terms of cargo. In Asia it plays a central role due to its advantageous location. Nevertheless, the airport capacity needs to be extended to ensure competitiveness in the future. The expansion plans include the construction of a third terminal with a single capacity of 45mio passengers per year and major improvements regarding the connectivity to Taipei and the Port of Taipei. Around the Airport there will be a completely new infrastructure to handle the higher number of passengers. The whole project will create up to 200,000 to 300,000 new work places and along with the establishment of convention and conference sites, Taoyuan International Airport will not only be a mere transportation hub - connected with the Aerotropolis project as a complex and innovative urban development project – these developments will also become a driving force in the region of Taipei and Taoyuan.
